Operators Ask Govern- ment to Operate Mines

The mine operators have wired the minister of labor at Ottawa, stating that they will not negotiate further in the mine situation, and urge that the government take immediate action to put mines in operation.
Following is copy of message sent by Secretary W.
F. McNeill:

"Acting in accordance with our past agreements, and upon your advice, we met the miners' representatives and agreed with them upon the terms of a new agreement, which they unanimously undertook to recommend for the acceptance of the men. This new agreement was voted down by the men on Saturday last and we are strongly of the opinion that its defeat was brought about largely by internal differences among the district and local officials. Under these conditions we feel it useless to negotiate further and submit that the government should see that the new agreement is put into effect or some other means adopted to get the mines in operation and save the country further embarrassment during the period of the war."

COMBINE TO FREE WORLD FROM IMPERIALISM AND ASSASSINISM

THREE WAYS PRESENTED OF ENDING THE WAR

Increasing Indications That the Central Powers are Casting About for Some Way to Bring the War to an End, as the Final Catastrophe is Drawing Near Ex-President Taft, in a speech delivered a few days ago in New York, said "the world is out to suppress militarism and absolutism; and the curse will pass from Germany when the Hohenzollern dynasty is overthrown, and the people have taken the government into their own hands." In this statement he has indicated two of the ways in which Germany is undergoing a struggle, namely, a third one, the revolution of the whole empire. In other words, the pressure on Germany is that of three different, but correlated forces—military, exerted by means of armies and navies; economic, caused by unprofitable expenditures and an effective blockade, and political, encouraged and intensified by the so far successful revolution in Russia. Any one of these factors might prove, acting alone, inadequate to effect the collapse of Germany's resistance, but it is absolutely certain that their close co-operation must reduce the "Central Powers" to submission. It does not, the final catastrophe will be the most complete when they come. Subjugation and revolution combine inevitable threefold ruin.

There are still increasing indications that all the Central Powers, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey—are casting about for some way of bringing the war to an end. They know by this time that there is not the slightest chance of a break-up of the nations on the Allied side. While the Allies are not likely to make a separate peace with any of the nations on the other side, the fact that it is open to them to do so may be a means of bringing an irresistible pressure to bear on Germany to ask for peace terms, with an honest offer of reasonable conditions. Meanwhile the fighting must go on. In such a war there can be no provisional cessation of hostilities. Against a foe so efficient as the German army, the only way for Belgium there must be maintained an increasingly vigorous and sustained series of attacks. Sooner or later the whole combination must break down, and the harder the pressure the shorter will be the interval of peace and sacrifice.—Toronto Globe.

A German Miscalculation

Morale Is the Factor of Chief Value in War

Morale is such an all-important factor in the war that it seems strange that a nation as well known as the Germans did not take more account of it. That they did calculate upon it to some extent is evident, but their point of view misled them in their estimates. Many careless readers confuse the terms of physical and morale, eyed in pronunciation, and while there is undoubtedly a connection between the two, there is a subjective nature which the Germans appear to have left out of account. The dictionary defines morale as "a state of mind, with reference to confidence, courage, zeal and the like, especially of a number of persons associated in some common enterprise, as soldiers in an army." It is evident, however, that the idea extends to a nation as well as to an army, and that national confidence, courage and zeal form a most important element in such a state of mind as war. This is where the miscalculation of the Germans comes in. Their morale rested on material basis. So many soldiers, so much training, so many guns and rifles, so much munitions of war—these were the words of their formula. Germany never seems to have learned that history is not a matter of numbers, but of quality and power of endurance. They thought that nickel gives a new quality to steel when mingled with it in a proportion of about one part of nickel to ten parts of steel. They realized that there might be some nickel admixture in the steel of character which would create an entirely new power of resistance. The democratic spirit is the nickel in the steel of human nature. In Germany there is no real democracy, no real self-dependence, and therefore no real morale. Only the Kaiser can depend upon "God," only the Kaiser can represent "God," and other men must depend upon the Kaiser. The Kaiser's arrangements for the war, in the French and English patriarchy every man learns to depend upon God himself and on his own deed. Hence the unquenchable morale of a true democracy.—From the Toronto World.

The British and American Navies. The relations between the British and American navies have always been not only pleasant, but, in the strictest meaning of the word, cordial. In producing Maken the American navy has put under a special obligation. Many more have said to have discovered for us the real secret of Nelson's genius, and the true meaning of the words of our other naval forefathers. Both navies today are the heirs to the same traditions.—Land and Water.

"You say that Miss Oldstyle is suffering from severe mental shock? What caused it?" "Why, she's claiming that she's only thirty-eight years old and then somebody found her name in one of those 'Years Ago' columns in the newspaper."

Contentment in India

Large Portion of the Country Is Not Under British Administration

"The notion prevails in the United States that all India belongs to the British and is administered by them," says Sant Nibol Singh in a recent interview. "This is an utterly erroneous idea. A large and populous portion of the peninsula is in the possession of its own people, and is ruled by them, with little or no interference from the British. I have coined the term 'Indian India' to differentiate between the India belonging to India, and that in the possession of the British. Indian India, with its area of 850,000 square miles, is almost one-third as large as continental United States. Its population, 78,000,000 persons, is a little more than five-fifths that of this country. Politically, British India is united. It is divided into three presidencies and twelve provinces, which are under the supreme government of India, presided over by the Viceroy and Governor-General, who is also the Secretary of State for India—a member of the British cabinet. In India, on the contrary, is 'not one political entity.'"

During recent years I have had the privilege of coming in close contact with several Indians who rule in their own right and name, and I have seen the policy of the British in private lives. Without a single exception, I have found the Indian rulers to be men of considerable capacity and statesmanship, all devoted to the welfare of their subjects and interested in the progress of reform movements. Not many public servants or business men in America or elsewhere work so hard as do these Indian potentates.

Austrian Balderdash

How Strange Is the Austrian Idea of State

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung, organ of the Austrian Socialist, quotes the following passage from the Reichsbote, the organ of the court party, as a typical example of the unbridled balderdash characteristic of this party: "In all that concerns the spirit of public administration, the righteousness of the government of the State, the safety of the constitution and its policies, Austria is incomparably superior to our enemies. How grandly stands the position of Austria in Hungary beside the constitutions of States like France and America, where the leaders of the nation are condemned by mere multiplicity for plottings. Austria declared war on Serbia because of its splendid heir to the throne had been murdered, and this was necessary to root out the cause of the crime. Austria absolutely moral was such a motive for war. How grand the Austrian idea of State!"

Huns Grossly Deceived

Women Most Glibble of All, Writes Northcliffe's Man

Writing of middle-class Germans, Mr. D. Thomas Curtis said: "While the German people are full of doubts among the German man-kind as to the accuracy of statements issued by the government, in the class with which I mostly come into contact in Germany the women are blindfoldly believe all the influence of government propaganda on the people of Germany that in a town where I met two English women married to Germans they believed that Germany had Verdun in her grasp, had annihilated the English troops (mainly black) on the Somme had defeated the English fleet in the battle of Slagterkrad (Jutland) and reduced the greater part of the fortifications, docks, and munition factories of London to ruins by Zeppelins. Their anguish for the fate of their English relations was sincere, and they were intensely hopeful that England would accept any sort of terms of peace in order to prevent the invasions which some people in Germany still believe possible."

War Is a Great Unifier

War is a great educator and a great unifier. It has modified and chastened all our opinions. It has left no room for free traders, English Reformers, Liberals, and Unionists, but Englishmen. These old divisions that were once so strong, and so much have now dwindled to their true proportions. What is at stake is seen to be nothing less than the existence and survival of the British Empire. In the light of the great danger and the great need, when we are facing the same enemies, we are prepared to sacrifice their opinions. And we say all honor to Germany still, but more than ever, we are prepared to sacrifice their opinions. And we say all honor to Germany still, but more than ever, we are prepared to sacrifice their opinions. And we say all honor to Germany still, but more than ever, we are prepared to sacrifice their opinions.

Honesty or Pride?

"What's the matter, little girl?" "Two boys were handed her and I got struck with a stone."

"But it's the innocent bystander who gets hit!" "But I don't know as I was an innocent bystander. I was what they were fighting about."—Yonkers Statesman.

Hungry Germany

Placed the Government Suppressed

Set Forth the True Condition

Much was heard a few months ago, shortly after the appointment of Herr Batocki as food dictator, of a notorious placard which was printed and circulated by secret means among the masses of the German working people, and among the soldiers also. This placard was clearly written by popular leaders, who wished to show the German people where they were being led by the cliques in power, and called on them to rise in protest before it was too late. Its suppression was vigorously sought by the government, the Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Chronicle reports in sending the full text.

"The following are extracts from it: 'What is the sound of the bells? It is the sound of the bells of the Reichstag. Hunger! At Leipzig, Berlin, Charlottenburg, Brunswick, Magdeburg, Coblenz, Ansbach and many other places disturbances among the hungry masses have occurred in front of the food offices. Our 'State-of-siege-government only answers with 'State of siege, police saboteurs, military tribunals, and the like. The government of the Reichstag has been the crime of causing hunger in Germany, and it holds out the only way to escape this situation. The government ought to have known that the war would happen. War against Russia, France and England must needs lead to the cutting off of Germany.'"

"War makers believe, 'Wicked enemies have done it on us.' But the only question is, 'Why did you follow the encircling policy?' The German government followed this imperialistic policy which upset all nations. Germany came into conflict with all, and finally united with the Austrians. The government has deceived and with hopelessly bankrupt Turkey and brought about the world war."

"In this crime was heaped, for this government did nothing to meet starvation. Why was nothing done? Because the war does not hurt the government hangers-on, capitalists, junkers, food usurers, but enriches them. It feeds the outlets of the struggle against hunger and misery serious measures had been taken, then the hungry masses would have recognized the seriousness of the situation, and the clamour for war would have evaporated. The people have been intoxicated for this reason with howling about victory, at the same time being handed over to the capitalist food usurers."

The ruling classes did not want to give up their mad policy, and led to the people by telling them that if they held out Germany would dictate peace and demand the world. They have tried to say that the German submarine will cut off England's supplies, and England will be made to sue for peace, and thus the war be ended. These are only fair tales for children, and the submarine warfare will bring more enemies on our backs, but there is no possibility of cutting off England's supplies, now that even if Germany had ten times as many submarines as she actually has, then it has been demonstrated that the offensive against the Balkans would give us more breathing space than relief. The world supplies, too, would come from Turkey. This was a deliberate lie for the Turkish government cannot feed its own army any longer. And now they would console us by pointing to the next harvest. They would tell us that the wheat crop is harvested, they say. This also is a deliberate swindle.

Now there is nothing left. The occupied territories have been cropped short. There is no longer enough to distribute to satisfy people's hunger. What of the future? The war can be carried on for another six months, or perhaps for a whole year, while the people will be left to a slow death from starvation. The younger generation will be sacrificed, and to the terrible sacrifices of dead and mutilated soldiers will be added the further sacrifices of women and children who will fall victims to diseases owing to starvation.

Tommy and the Mirage

Soldier Stationed in Egypt Bewails the Conditions

Sergeant Willison, of the Lancashire, stationed somewhere in Egypt, bewails a number of evils in that theatre of warfare. "There is too much daylight about. It strikes you when you look up, or down, or ahead. The new helmet worn by us is certainly a protector against the rays of the sun, but as no one has been able to get through the helmet into an ice storage we must endure the perspiration. I cannot say that I am a champion of the mirages one sees here. At first they were interesting, but when I saw the other day a huge army of men, looking toward us, with clouds of white smoke behind them I felt as if we were being encircled. The monotony of the desert may please me like Hall Caine, but the conditions here are too much for me. The power of the Turk we have no use for anything that does not end in the hands of the enemy. When I am there is something done."

Didn't Correct Her

"That dame asked me for some consummated life," said the grocer's new boy with a grin. "Didn't correct her, did you?" asked the grocer. "Aw, nex! I'm onto me job better than you are. I set her down for a consecrated life and said 'nothin'." Exchange.

It might be well while you are correcting your disordered offspring to remember that "you did not do" is a word.

An Overseas Institute

Germany to Foster Interests at Home by Encouraging Colonization Overseas

In addition to the 80,000,000 Germans at home, there are 20,000,000 abroad. How are these sons of the Fatherland to be encouraged in their love and allegiance to the Fatherland? This is the problem which is being faced by the German Institute and Museum in the interests of overseas Germans at Stuttgart under the patronage of the emperor, the King of Wurtemberg, and the principal shippers and exporters. After the war there will be tremendous changes, and Germany may reasonably look forward in time to an almost immeasurable increase of her overseas trade. No time must be lost in arranging for the necessary supply of all available raw materials, and the only way to secure an extension of markets for finished manufactures. The colonial cooperation of the Institute and Museum is absolutely necessary.

These and similar thoughts occupy the mind of the German Institute, which is to supply a knowledge of overseas Germans and their conditions of life to the people at home, and to awaken an intelligent interest in native products and resources. The concerns of those colonies of German men "who are our advanced guard abroad."

Curiosities are not to be a cabinet of curiosities. Among all the various objects exhibited there is to be a direct connection. Overseas Germany is to be shown in the midst of her surroundings and in her dealings with native products and resources. In this way the Imperial German will grow familiar with countries in which he is becoming vitally concerned.

Some interesting details regarding the nature of the collections are given by the German Institute. Dr. Carl Uhlig to the Berlin Tagblatt. They are to embrace the history of the arts and crafts, objects of the overseas German, and, in addition, much that is important in the history of the sciences, the arts, German settlements, trade, domestic life, and its arrangements, clothing, utensils of all sorts, the products of the arts and crafts, objects of industry, means of transport and communication, and all that fitly illustrates or explains the scientific, artistic, religious and social institutions of the country are all to be exhibited. The people have been intoxicated for this reason with howling about victory, at the same time being handed over to the capitalist food usurers."

But this is not all. There will be an important department devoted to the history of the colonies. In foreign countries where Germans are settled, another will illustrate the history of the colonies. The third will be devoted to exhibits bearing on overseas German schools. Special attention will be given to the history of the colonies. The fourth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The fifth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The sixth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The seventh will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The eighth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The ninth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The tenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The eleventh will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twelfth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The thirteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The fourteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The fifteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The sixteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The seventeenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The eighteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The nineteenth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twentieth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-first will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-second will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-third will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-fourth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-fifth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-sixth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-seventh will be devoted to the history of the colonies. The twenty-eighth will be devoted to the history of the colonies. Advice to New Arrivals

Avoid the vicinity of burning shells.
They take the most unwarranted liberties with your physique.

If you have any particular physical feature of which you are proud, such as an exceptionally symmetrical shinbone, conceal it carefully from enemy sharpshooters.
The alterations might not suit you.

Be absent from the neighborhood of other persons when they are on the point of arriving. They are no respect-ers of the King's uniform, and khaki shows stains so easily.

Annual Report Neglected And Dependent Children

Conservation is one of the big words of the twentieth century. We talk quite glibly about the conservation of our natural resources; we mean, of course, our timber, mineral and land wealth. Our phenomenal natural assets would be of little value, however, if it were not for a race of honest, industrious men and women who, by their ingenuity and enterprise, take things in their crude undeveloped state, and turn them into comforts for the world. "Things are in the saddle, and ride mankind, they say." So wrote Emerson fifty years ago, and there are critics of the American poet who affirm that if he were alive today, he would say the same thing, only with tenfold greater emphasis. Yet, we see on every hand evidences that the civilized world is beginning to think more of persons and less of property. It is the business of the Department of Neglected and Dependent Children to conserve, as far as possible, the orphans, the children of parents who are incapable of looking after their own offspring, or who have become criminals, in order that they may have an opportunity to develop into sturdy, healthy men and women. Unless these children are given some special care, they will inevitably be lost to society.

The report of the Department to hand, indicates that during the year 1916 some 100 dependent children and 760 delinquents were brought under their care. The emphasis is placed on the "placing out system." There are four shelters or temporary homes in the Province, maintained by the four largest cities. Wards of the Department are detained in these only for a brief time. There is no difficulty in securing good foster homes for all normal, well developed children. Institutions produce what is known as the "institutional type," a kind of half-spirited machine, lacking initiative and strength of personality. A child developing normally under normal conditions, and the only normal condition for a child is in some good home.

The report indicates that war conditions have had an effect upon the delinquent problem. During the year, an increase of nearly 50% was noted over the preceding year. The reason for this are given as follows:

1. Decrease in parental control owing to absence of so many fathers.
2. The fact that so many male teachers for whom the boys had the greatest respect have joined the forces, and as a result little individual attention can be given.
3. The spirit of adventure is in the air, children hear from friends and relatives thrilling accounts of trench warfare and other excitements, and their love for imitation leads them into many offences. Similar or greater increases have been noted in England and other countries now at war.

Whilst boy delinquency has increased nearly 50%, there has been a slight decrease in the number of girl delinquents. A great deal of care is taken of the latter class. In the cities, the Children's Aid Societies provide Matrons who give them special care and supervision. Earning their own living under the care of a good sister, a great many of them are saved for themselves and society.

There are incorrigible boys and girls who have to be treated in institutions. For the present the boys are cared for in the Industrial Training School at Portage La Prairie, and the girls in one or other of the Social Service Homes of the Province.

According to the report, there is need at the present time in this Province, an institution to provide care and training for mental defectives, and a suitable institution for delinquent girls. The institution for mental defectives should provide for such training as will enable the majority to become practically self-supporting. Care of this class should not be confined to the children, but to women of child bearing age. It is urged that an institution for delinquent girls provide for their re-education according to age and type, and for proper industrial training.

A perusal of the booklet indicates that the Department has received the hearty co-operation of a great number of individuals and societies interested in the problem of conserving the wastage of society.

The Professor's Bulletin

No. 18. "IF IT IS," "IF IT IS." What determines which form one should use? The rule is this:—(Dealing with present time—if the condition is being fulfilled, one uses "if it is"; while, if the condition is a pure hypothesis, which is not being fulfilled—and for that matter, may never be fulfilled—one uses "if it be." Again, dealing with past time—if the condition has been fulfilled, one uses "if it was"; while, if the condition has not been fulfilled, one uses "if it were." ("If it were" is frequently used also in present time. For example,—"If it were true, it should be surprised.")

"IF IT HAPPENS": "IF IT HAPPENS." Here, if we are dealing with a circumstance which exists in fact, we use the singular form of the verb; while, if we are dealing with a circumstance which exists only in hypothesis, or which, conceivably, may some time be realized in fact, we use the plural form of the verb.

came mostly from visitors who had gathered in to hear the afternoon's programme. The first-prize hand-all of them went for good figures.

Live Merchants Make Their Advertising of Immediate Value To You.

They know that "purse interest" is very strong with you these days. If they are able to offer you a money-saving opportunity they will tell you about it promptly in their advertisements.

They know that you expect them to keep you in touch with their "store news." They will give you the store news while it is fresh and valuable to you--while it is current news.

They know that you buy "in the light"--that you want to know about commodities and their selling prices--that you have abandoned the old habit of "shopping around" and that you visit stores with previously formed plans for your buying.

Knowing these things, live merchants tell you their store news in every issue of this paper.

An enjoyable birthday party was held at the home of Mrs. Walsh in west Blairmore, on Saturday evening last, in celebration of Miss Mary L. Walsh's—tenth birthday. A party of fourteen friends were present, including Miss Dobbie and brother, Mr. Levasseur and Miss Inca Walsh, from Pincher Creek.

"The Cow Bill"

The Live Stock Encouragement Act, which was passed at the recent session of the Alberta Legislature, commonly known as "The Cow Bill," is now in operation, and applications are being received at the Department of Agriculture for loans under this Act. The Act provides that any five or more farmers may avail themselves of its provisions by joining together for that purpose. Those men may borrow up to $500 each. The money is loaned to them for a period of five years at 6 per cent. interest. The farmer receives the full $500 and he has nothing to pay but $30 interest once a year until the end of five years. The only expense in connection with the loan is a fee of $1 for every $100 borrowed. There is no further expense in connection with chattel mortgages or the registration of the same, as the Live Stock Commissioner in the Department of Agriculture holds the cattle in security for the loan by means of a permanent brand. A certain amount of supervision is made over the purchase of the cattle, or rather, the farmer is given whatever assistance he may require in the purchase of his cows. The money must be used exclusively in the purchase of cows or heifers, except in case a number of members of an association wish to purchase a pure-bred bull to be used by them as an association, and then 10 per cent. of their money may be used for that purpose.

The purchase of live stock under this Act must retain the progeny of the cows or heifers so purchased until the note is paid, except that he can sell the steers when they are two years old and use the proceeds in connection with his farming business. None of the original cows or heifers, or cows or heifers bred from them, can be sold without the written consent of the Live Stock Commissioner. This consent, of course, will be given in case a farmer should require to sell any of them on account of their being non-breeders or for any other reason, replacing those sold with other cows or heifers. In this way the live stock loans will practically all be well secured after the first crop of calves has been raised, so that there will be no comparatively small amount of risk either for the Government or for any individual member of an association.

In order to avail themselves of this loan, five farmers are asked to join together, signing joint and several notes for the money, so that in case of any man wilfully neglecting his stock there will be some interested person in the shape of another member of the syndicate to notify the Live Stock Commissioner, and be under the provisions of this Act, can take charge of the stock so neglected, and see that the other members of the syndicate as well as the Government are protected against loss.

Provision is also made in the Act for the Live Stock Commissioner to proceed against the one man who neglects his stock and compel him to pay whatever loss there is without involving the other members of the syndicate in a law-suit, the idea being to work out, as simply as possible, a system by which men can borrow money at a low rate of interest for the purchase of live stock, and still have reasonable protection for the Treasury of the Province of Alberta, which guarantees these loans, and thus materially reduces the rate of interest.

Already a number of applications have been received from associations, and the Live Stock Commissioner is now prepared to take the matter up with any farmers who are interested in the Act. Write the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, for information, forms of application and copies of The Live Stock Encouragement Act.

The minister had just preached his farewell sermon to the congregation with whom he had had much trouble.

"How beautiful!" said a visitor, to one of the deacons; "and how appropriate for a farewell sermon!"

"Think so?" said the deacon, gruffly.

"Why, yes. What better text could he find than 'In My Father's House are many Mansions. . . I go to prepare a place for you.' By the way, where is he going?"

The deacon smiled sourly as he answered. "He becomes chaplain of a convict prison."

Overland Country Club

Style—Comfort Power—Economy

This new Overland Country Club Light Four is a distinctive and smart car in the low priced class.

The rich gray body, with black fenders and trimmings, is set off to pleasing advantage by red wire wheels that give just the right flash of brilliant color.

The two comfortable front seats move forward or back independently, and a spacious aisle between gives free passage to a roomy seat for two passengers in the rear.

For riding comfort, the Overland Country Club is a revelation. An unusual demand for this model makes it necessary to place orders at once to secure spring delivery.
